

Husson and NMCC Sign Credit Transfer Agreement

Northern Maine Community College (NMCC) and Husson University have approved a memorandum of understanding that will facilitate the transfer of credits between the two educational institutions. This benefits students interested in pursuing a bachelor's degree at Husson University on the NMCC campus or at other Husson locations.

The signing ceremony, marking the beginning of this agreement, took place on Thursday, February 13, at the E. Perrin Edmunds Library.

The agreement outlines admission and program requirements at Husson University for Bachelor of Science degrees in Accounting, Business Administration, and Business and Professional Studies. It also specifies which NMCC courses can be used to meet general elective and major requirements within each of these degree programs. Individual course equivalencies listed by program are included in the agreement to assist in the advising process.

In addressing the relationship between the two organizations, Husson University's College of Business Dean Marie Hansen said, "Husson University has enjoyed being co-located on NMCC's campus since 2006. This new articulation agreement provides students who successfully complete approved coursework at Northern Maine Community College in accounting, business administration or medical office administration with a better understanding of the transfer process."

Call for Nominations for Aroostook Entrepreneur of the Year Award

Leaders Encouraging Aroostook Development (LEAD) and Momentum Aroostook, in conjunction with the four institutions of higher education in the region, are pleased to announce nominations are being accepted for Aroostook's Entrepreneur - 2014 Award, giving recognition to progressive business founders/owners/operators in northern Maine. The theme for this year's contest is "Resources: The Idea Starts Here."

"This is an opportunity to highlight some our most creative and successful businesses. It also sets a wonderful example for people considering starting their own business," according to NMCC President Timothy Crowley. "It is important for The County to celebrate and recognize good work; this award gives us a chance to showcase some of our best."

Nominations must be received by April 4, 2014. Program details and a nomination form are available for download at www.leadarostook.com.

Jim Davis, president of LEAD, makes the announcement in the NMCC library that they are accepting nominations for the 2014 Aroostook Entrepreneur of the Year Award.
